

Media Manager

About us

EUFIC – the European Food Information Council, is a consumer-oriented non-profit organisation, founded to make the science behind food and health more accessible and easier to understand among the public.

We are passionate science and communication experts who believe in the power of knowledge, and in a world where people choose to live healthier and more sustainable lives because they know how to. To help build it, we offer accessible, appealing and actionable science-based information to inspire and empower people to improve their diet and lifestyle.

We collaborate with a broad network of academics, national and international organisations, businesses and professionals in the food and health sector. We carry out consumer research to understand people's perceptions, views and preferences. We are a lively, multi-disciplinary, and multi-cultural team of over 30 colleagues, based in the heart of the European Quarter.

Our funding comes from membership, the European Commission, foundations, umbrella organisations and from sales of publications.

Job description

EUFIC is looking for a Media Manager to join our talented team and support the work in the following areas:

- Monitoring and mapping European media outlets and journalists relevant to food, nutrition, and health topics
- Maintaining and expanding EUFIC's media database
- Researching and drafting press releases, media briefings, and articles translating scientific evidence for journalists
- Monitoring media coverage and emerging narratives related to food, nutrition, and health
- Contributing to the development of corporate communication materials and reporting on achievements and key performance indicators (KPIs)
- Building relationships with journalists, scientists, and partner organisations
- Managing EUFIC's misinformation activities, sharing media briefs with journalists, curating resources, and organising webinars
- Supporting the development and implementation of communication and media outreach strategies targeting journalists, scientists, and stakeholders
- Contributing to communication initiatives aimed at bringing science-based information into public and media debates

Additional responsibilities may include:

- Specific administrative tasks as they arise
- Preparing internal documents (e.g., meeting minutes and background materials)

Educational requirements, experience and skills

The successful applicant should have/be:

- MSc degree in journalism, media, science communication, or a related field
- Fluent in English (written and spoken)
- 3–5 years of experience in media relations, journalism, science communication, or a similar role
- Experience translating complex scientific or technical information for media or public audiences
- Experience working with scientific experts or researchers
- Experience identifying, analysing or addressing misinformation related to food, nutrition, health or science
- Experience managing online communities or stakeholder networks
- Experience building strong relationships with external partners and identifying collaboration opportunities
- Proactive and forward-thinking, able to stay on top of developments in media, communication, and public engagement
- Strong interpersonal skills and a team player
- Able to work independently, with a positive and flexible attitude
- Creative and motivated to propose new ideas and challenge the status quo with confidence
- Enthusiastic about working in a dynamic, highly motivated team

Job conditions

- Full-time position (38h/week)
- Salary package between 2500-2800€gross/month depending on experience, including benefits (e.g. 13th month, holiday pay, pension scheme, health insurance cover, lunch vouchers, phone contract, annual bonus)
- Based in Brussels, telework up to 5 days a week
- Start date: as soon as possible
- Contract 1 year, renewable
- Can involve European travel for meetings and conferences

Application

Email your application, including a full CV and a letter of motivation, to jobs@eufic.org before Wednesday, 3 April 2026, stating “Media Manager” in the subject line.

Only successful candidates will be notified of the outcome of the first selection. Interviews will take place via Microsoft Teams in the first instance.

European Food Information Council (EUFIC)

Rue Belliard 2A
1040 Brussels
Belgium